He comes to us from a very busy schedule.

Dr Tom Frame

Tom Frame was born in Sydney during 1962 and raised in Wollongong. He joined the Royal Australian Naval College, HMAS Creswell, as a 16 year old cadet midshipman in January 1979 and served in the Navy for fourteen years. After completing a PhD at the Australian Defence Force Academy, he resigned from the RAN to complete a Master of Theology degree and his training for the Anglican ministry. He was ordained in 1993 and held several parish appointments in Australia and in England where he completed a Master of Arts Degree (with Honours) in Applied Theology. On 28 June 2001, he was consecrated Fifth Anglican Bishop to the Australian Defence Force. Dr Frame is the author of seventeen books on a range of topics. His latest books are Living by the Sword? The Ethics of Armed Intervention (University of NSW Press, April 2004) and The Cruel Legacy: The Tragedy of HMAS Voyager (Allen & Unwin, February 2005). His new book, The Life and Death of Harold Holt, will be launched on 12 August 2005 by the Federal Treasurer, Peter Costello. He is married to Helen, they have two teenage daughters and live in Canberra.
