Initially from an Australian Defence Force career, Ross ultimately became a consultant in his radio- & tele-communications speciality, taking him around Australia and overseas for novel jobs.

Many exciting, challenging and uplifting experiences arose for him and his wife in working together, with her utilising her management skills on his projects.

Of special satisfaction was the job on the short-wave transmission from Kununurra, WA, for radio station HCJB from where it broadcasts into Asia and western Pacific. Let Ross' story inspire the use of individual talents to open new vistas and go places!
