John and Sally-Ann Cottle have lived on the Monaro since 1990, managing the family farm south of Nimmitabel and from 1993, Cottle House in Cooma. After 20 years, they decided to close Cottle House and focus more on their farming enterprise.

Since 1997, John has embarked on a landscaping project that will eventually encompass over 300 acres. He has pursued this project with well known Melbourne and Sydney landscape architects, Paul Bangay and Miles Baldwin.

The basis for the project has been to build upon the landscape passion encompassing the last two generations of the family, and create a place for ministry. That ministry will seek encourage people to experience the beauty of God's creation and the peace and wisdom flowing from this often misunderstood gift of God.

Come and enjoy good company over a hearty Breakfast and hear John's story and vision to invigorate our living.
